Society for the Protection of Unborn Children

There will be a White Flower second collection for SPUC this weekend. People often ask why the appeal is called the “White Flower Appeal”. The name was originally inspired by the work of the Weißer Rose (White Rose) movement, a non-violent, intellectual resistance to the Nazis in Germany at the height of the Second World War. They became known for an anonymous leafletting and graffiti campaign that lasted 8 months between 1942 and 1943. In February 1943 Hans and Sophie Scholl, two of the group's core active members, were caught and arrested. Following interrogation, they were tried by the Gestapo and beheaded along with four others. The Weißer Rose and Sophie Scholl have been the subject of a number of films retelling the story of their bravery to new generations. The White Rose still serves as an example to us of what can be achieved by standing up for what is right. SPUC is grateful for the unapologetic defence of unborn babies and vulnerable people that the teaching of the Catholic Church provides.
